

ADVANCED LEVEL ENGLISH UPDATE FOR TEACHERS

Course dates

19 July - 25 July

Course fees

£685
1 week only

Course location

University of Kent

Target audience

Upper intermediate and advanced level native and non-native teachers of English or teachers of other subjects, who want to update and fine-tune their English language.

This is a language course; there is no methodology.

You will need at least an upper-intermediate level of English (B2 and above).

Course summary

Teachers who work in non-English speaking countries often find they 'lose touch' with what is appropriate in English or with new developments in the language. They also enjoy and benefit from a 'brush-up' of their English in an English speaking environment.

The course is of a highly practical and participatory nature. You will be engaged in and challenged by a variety of fruitful activities. Although principally a language improvement course, many of the approaches you experience on this course will benefit your own teaching. This course also provides a large amount of English practice throughout.

Course content

Revisiting and building up lexical & grammatical areas, especially those which cause difficulties

Work on English phonology including sounds, stress, rhythm and intonation

A look at socio-cultural aspects of English and how changes in culture influence changes in the language

Studying English through authentic materials, e.g. newspaper articles, TV programmes, etc.

Using online resources

Building confidence in listening to spoken English, including a wide variety of accents

Building fluency and confidence in spoken English

Learning aspects of English that are traditionally "untaught" such as spoken grammar

'Language clinic' in which you can ask questions and have your mistakes corrected

Accredited by the

for the teaching of English in the UK
